

HISTORY

Originally settled by German and Scandinavian immigrants, the area has a rich history and a unique cultural identity from the waves of immigration that have settled in the neighborhood over the years. In the mid-20th century, Logan Square saw another influx of immigrants, particularly from Mexico and Puerto Rico. Today, the neighborhood is known for its vibrant Mexican-American community, which has left its mark on the neighborhood's culture and cuisine.

One of the most notable and historic features of Logan Square is the beautiful boulevard system that runs through the neighborhood. Designed by legendary architect and planner Daniel Burnham in the late 19th century, the boulevards were created to provide a beautiful, tree-lined connection between the city's parks and green spaces. Today, the Logan Square Boulevard National Historic District is lined with regal limestone homes and are a popular spot for biking, walking, and picnicking.

The boulevard is anchored by the soaring Illinois Centennial Monument, designed by the same architect who created the Lincoln Memorial in Washington D.C. It'll lead you straight to Palmer Square, where you'll find residents lounging in the grass with a frozen treat from a seasonal spot Miko's Italian Ice. Once a popular raceway for nineteenth-century carriage drivers and cyclists, this green space is a quiet getaway in the Logan Square neighborhood.
